Course Description, Prerequisites, Corequisites:

Victorian Britain was the first urban industrial nation. This course will examine the way that Victorian society met the challenge of industrialization, focusing on the social, cultural and political changes that took place in Britain during the 19th century. Emphasis will be placed on specific themes such as the changing class relationships, the impact of industrialization on family life, patterns of work and leisure, and urban growth.

Prerequisites and Corequisites unavailable, please consult Department for details

Learning Outcomes:

Upon successful completion of this course, students will be able to:

- describe how industrialization transformed Britain
- apply the concept of industrialization to other developing societies and explain how some of the institutions of modern Canadian society evolved from British roots
- construct and express arguments in speech and writing, including enhanced skills in academic research and formal writing
- communicate their ideas to others in an on-line environment
