4. ACTION ITEMS

a. Draft Policy B5006 – Web Publishing

L. Holmes referenced her memo dated April 12, 2006, entitled Draft Policy – B5006 – Web Publishing and outlined the purpose of the policy as described in the document attached to the agenda. She noted that the work on this policy originally began several years ago as a follow-up to the Technology Task Force report and the subsequent work that resulted in the Computer Technology Planning Policy. She noted that there have been several iterations of the policy since that time and the attached version is the final version as supported by the Web Publishing Policy Committee, currently chaired by Jacqueline Bradshaw. She further noted that the operational components related to the policy will be identified in the Web Publishing Standards Manual, which is a work in progress. L. Holmes identified that there will be two separate web components: the Official College web pages and the Instructional web pages. She noted that for the Official College web pages, a web page template will be created for instructional and administrative departments. The template for the Instructional web pages would be set each semester by the replication of courses in the Registration Guide. Every term, instructors and the registered students will have access to the web pages for each course. The instructor can post course information, etc., to assist students who are registered in the instructor's courses. The Official Langara College Web Page will be available to the public, and the Registration Guide will permit Public access to the Section Information Summaries. L. Holmes suggested members look at the Philosophy web page if they wanted to see how the web pages for instructional departments would look. She noted that there will be links throughout the web page to avoid repetition (i.e. courses link to calendar, resources, etc.).

It was moved by K. Pawlak, seconded by L. Cullen

THAT, the Draft Policy B5006 Web Publishing be approved.
