

A Message from The Honourable Selina Robinson

Welcome to everyone gathered for the Langara College class of 2023 convocation ceremonies.

On behalf of Premier David Eby and the Government of British Columbia, a big congratulations on your graduation. This is an incredible accomplishment, and you should be very proud of the work you have done to reach this moment. I wish I could be there in person to celebrate your achievement.

As graduates, you have equipped yourselves with the skills, knowledge, and education to seek out employment in the field of your choosing and develop a career that meets your expectations. You are here today because of hard work and perseverance. Well done! Langara has a great reputation for quality education and your time at Langara has served you well.

This is an incredible time to enter the workforce with opportunities in a wide range of sectors. Over the next decade, we are expecting over one million new job openings in B.C. and 80% of these jobs will require post-secondary education or skills training. You are in a great position to take advantage of the world of opportunities there are for people in British Columbia.

You are the next generation of leaders and innovators. Be proud of what you've accomplished. I wish you all the very best as you pursue your dreams and make big things happen. Congratulations again on your graduation.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in blue ink, appearing to read "S. Robinson". The signature is enclosed in a thin, light blue rectangular border.

Minister of Post-Secondary Education and Future Skills